

nature > nature briefing > article

NATURE BRIEFING | 24 May 2022

Scientists with influence

Several scientists are among Time's pick of the 100 most influential people of 2022. Among them:

- Influential AI ethicist Timnit Gebru is profiled by Internet-studies scholar Safiya Noble.
- Immunologists Tulio de Oliveira and Sikhulile Moyo, who led the genetic sequencing of SARS-CoV-2 and the Omicron variant, are introduced by John Nkengasong, the director of the Africa Centres for Disease Control and Prevention.
- Climatologist Panmao Zhai and climate scientist Valérie Masson-Delmotte, the co-chairs of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change working group 1, are profiled by environmentalist Bill McKibben.
- Genomics researchers Adam Phillippy, Karen Miga, Evan Eichler, Michael Schatz, of the Telomere to Telomere consortium, which sequenced the most complete version of the human genome ever, are profiled by Nobel-prizewinning biochemist Jennifer Doudna.
- Nobel laureate and astrophysicist John Mather writes about his NASA colleague, James Webb Space Telescope programme director Gregory Robinson.

Time | full collection, each about a 2 min read (metered paywall – read your two favourites first)